A sensational story corporning Minister Manning's experience at a banquet comes from the City of Mexico by special teleram to the Chicago Times:

The American colony in this city is profound ly agitated and worked by an affair which touches American pride to a d gree even surpassing the redgwick affair. This story in brief is to the effect that the new American Minister, Hon Thomas H. Manning, of Louisiana, has fallen a victum to the relentless enemy of Mr. St. Louis, Mo., was robbed of $3,000 worth of diamonds, watches, and jewelry.

The Brotherhood of Railway Section

A LONG FAREWELL.

Alan Arthur Consigned to Earth.

A Large Gathering of Eminent | The Executions Cannot Take Place Be-Men Present at the Ceremontes.

[New York telegram.]

The last night of the loving watch the bier of Gen. Chester Alan Arthur, ex-President of the United States, has passed. President Cleveland and Postmaster General Vilas arrived in a carriage direct from the train at 8:20 a. m., and entered the house of mourning. Many people uncovered their heads when the President stepped out of his carriage. Shortly after, Gov. Hill and Judge William Muller arrived and entered the house. They were followed by the Senate committee.

By this time there was a mighty throng of people on the avenue, and the windows of every house were tilled with sad faces.

There were no services at the house. At 8:30 the black casket, covered with palmetto eaves, sprays of violets, and a wreath of white roses, was lifted by the undertaker's assistants and borne from the room. The silent form of Chester A. Arthur passed through the door of his earthly tenement for the last time, and was reverently placed in the funeral-draped hearse. As the casket came in view of the people in the street every head was bowed reverently, and many eyes filled with tears in the throng thus hushed in the presence of

There was no display of pomp or ceremony, no military music or procession, but the mighty throng of sorrowing people bore witness to their love and respect for the deceased statesman.

Next came out of the residence Chester Alan Arthur, Jr., the son of the ex-President. Leaning on his arm, clad in garments of mourning, was his sister, Miss Nellie Arthur. They passed quietly to their carriage, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. McEiroy. Then came Mrs. Caws, Mrs. Hayneworth, and Miss Arthur, the sister of the ex-President; Postmaster Masten and his wife, of Cohoes, N. Y., with their son and daughter; President Cleveland, Postmaster-General Vilas, Gen. Martin T. McMahon, John H. Praper, Secretaries Bayard, Whitney, and Lamar; the pallbearers, consisting of ex-Postmaster General Gresham, ex-Secretaries Lincoln and Chandler, ex-Assistant Postmaster General Hatton, ex-Attorney General Brewster, Lieutenant General Sheridan. Dr. Cornelius R. Agnew, Cornelius N. Bliss, Robert G. Dun, Gen. George H. Sharpe, Charles L. Tiffany, and Cornelius Vanderbilt; Chief Justice Waite and Justices Harlan and Blatchford, Senators Edmunds, Sherman, Logan, Evarts, Hawley, Morrill, Vest, and Gorman, Gen. Stone, and Gov. Hill.

The mourners filled twenty-five carriages, but over one hundred carriages filled with friends, who had been unable to gain admission to the house, followed the procession to the church. All along the line were immense throngs of people who in respectful silence while the funeral train passed. As the casket was borne into the church the choir formed in two files and the clergymen passed between them heading the procession intoning the opening lines of the beautiful Episcopal burial service; the casket was borne up the aisle on the shoulders of the four undertakers' assistants, followed by the pall-bearers, the family, and the immediate friends.

After the services the undertakers' assistents lifted the casket on their shoulders and proceeded slowly out of the church, followed by the pall-bearers, members of the family, President and his Cabinet, Gov. Hill and his staff, and the representatives of the army and navy.

The remains were placed on a train for Albany, where Bishop Doane recited the committal service at the grave. Earth was thrown in the grave and pressed down, and when the dusk of evening began to settle on forest and hill, deft hands covered the newly made mound with sheets of sod.

GENERAL KAULBARS.

A Soldier and Diplomat of Distinction. General Kaulbars, the Russian who for the last few weeks has been the subject of a large share of attention throughout the civilized world, on account of his close connection with the Bulgarian imbroglio, is less than fifty years of age. He is an able soldier, and a statesman and diplomat as well, having devoted years of close study to the politics of Europe and the East. As the agent of the Czar in Bulgaria he seems to have performed his work well. Gen. Kaulbars was recently recalled by the Czar. Before leaving Sofia he asked the German Consul to protect Russian subjects. The Consul, after consulting his Government, replied that he was willing to protect genuine Russians, but not Montenegrins or Bulgarians. This implies Germany's censure of Russia's protection of the Zankoff and other conspirators. The Czar instructed Gen. Kaulbars to confide Russian subjects to the care of France.

"WHY do you wink at me, sir?" said a beautiful young lady, angrily, to a stranger, at a party an evening or two since. "I beg your pardon, madam," replied the wit; "I wink as men do when looking at the sun—your splendor dazzled my eyes."

The Mortal Remains of Chester | The Chief Justice of the Illinois Supreme Court Orders a Supersedens.

> fore March-How the Anarchists Received the News.

|Bloomington (III.) special.|

Chief Justice Scott, of the Supreme Court, granted a supersedeas in the anarchists' case on Thursday. He reached his room in the court house from his residence between 8 and 9 o'clock. An hour later he sent for Captain Black, Mr. Solomon, and Mr. Swett and announced to them his decision. He then wrote out the following order and appended it to the huge records:

huge records:

After inspecting the foregoing transcript of the record, the undersigned, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the State, is of the opinion that there is reasonable ground for grant ng the writ of error applied for in the cause. It is therefore ordered that a writ of error be grant d in this cause, and it is further ordered that the writ of error herein ordered to be issued by a supergradues as to such and critered that the writ of error herein ordered to be issued be a supersedeas as to each and every one of the planniffs in error, viz. August pes, Michael Schwab, Samuel Fielden, Albert R. Parsons, Adolph Fischer, George Engel, Louis Lingg and Os ar W. Neebe, and shall have the effect as provided in section 1, division 15, criminal code, Revised Statutes 1874, page 14, to stay the execution of the judgment pronounced by the Criminal Court of Cook County against each of aforesaid plain. of Cook County against each of aforesaid plain-tiffs in error until the further order of the Su-preme Court in this cause. It is further ordered that the Clerk of the Supreme Court in the Northern Division, upon the filing of this tran-script of the record in his office, shall immediately issue the writ of error as a supersedess as herein ordered, in accordance with the provision of the section of the statute above cited.

Done at Bloomington this 2-th day of November, A. D. 18-6.

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

[Ottawa (BL) dispatch.] The writ of supersedeas which was issued was in form as follows: I do hereby certify that a writ of error has issued from this court for the reversal of a judg-ment obtained by the people of the State of Illinois against August spies, Michael Schwab, Samuel Fielden, Albert R. Parsons, Adelph Fischer George Engel, Louis Linge, and Carar W. Neebe, in the Criminal Court of Cook Coun-try at the October term thereof A. D. 1881 in a ty, at the October term thereof, A. D. lest, in a certain a tion of indictment for murder, which writef error is made a supersedeas and is to operate as a suspension of the execution of the judgment therein, and as such is to be obeyed in all concerned. y all concerned. Given under my hand and the seal of the Supreme Court at Otzawa this 26th day of November, Δ. D. 1886.

A. H. Tayron,

Clerk of the Supreme Court.

[Chicago special.] The convicted anarchists will not be hanged on the 3d proximo. Judge Scott, of the Supreme bench, has granted a writ of supersedeas, which operates as a stay of excution pending the hearing of the appeal by the full bench. This hearing will take place at the spring term of the court, to be held at Ottawa, and the final decision will hardly be rendered before April or May. The granting of the supersedens was almost a foregone conclusion. It is in conformity with the almost invariable practice of the Supreme Judges in capital cases, when a delay of execution is necessary to allow the court time for hearing an appeal.

How the Condemned Men Received the News. [From the Chicago Tribune.]

The anarchists were all pleased with the news, and if they eventually escape all punisl ment it is safe to say they won't again play with edged tools. When seen by a reporter Parsons was seated in his cell. He had his feet against the grated door and his chair tilted back at an angle of forty-five degrees. Asked what he thought of the granting of the supersedeas, he said it struck him very favorably, and he was glad to hear it. He didn't know to what extent the influences brought to bear in the trial before Judge Gary would affect the decision of Supreme Court Justices on a motion for supersedeas, but he was pleased to see that they had cut no figure. He thought the decision of Judge Scott in granting the writ was in itself an evidence that the conviction of himself and the others was a violation of the law.

"If you get out of this scrape do you think you will talk and write in the future as you did in the past?" he was asked. "I can't say whether I would write the same things and preach the same doctrines. For my part, I am willing to say the rascalities, outra es, and robberies to which the working classes have been subjected sometimes get the better of a man who feels for them, and leads him to say things he wouldn't say when in his calmer moments. It's a good deal like politics, where the leader of one party abuses the leader of the other, but after the campaign is over everything settles down to quiet again.

Fischer was not much surprised to hear the news, as he thought all along that the writ would be granted. He believed, how-ever, that if Judge Scott was of similar material to Judge Gary there would have been no hope at all.

Fielden was not disappointed over the news, as it was just about what he expected. He was uncertain what business he would engage in if he finally got clear of his present troubles, and was unable to say what influences might be brought to bear upon him to change the opinions he had so freely uttered in the past.

Schwab couldn't say he was much surprised at the news, for his attorneys had assured bim that everything was favorable to the granting of the writ. He thought similar disturbances to those of last May would occur again, but intimated that he wouldn't be mixed up in them. "We Germans," he said, "are more radical and out-poken in our views than Americans, because we have seen the same state of affairs produce the same results in the old country, and, in raising our voices against the further oppression of the working people, only tried to avert the disasters that have overtaken them elsewhere.' Spics was expecting the supersedeas, but would not have been surprised had it been refused, after what he had seen at the trial. He said he was not ashamed of anything he had written in the past, although admitting he might have said some unreasonable things. Concluding, he said: "My course in the past may not have been wise, but I never willingly harmed anybody in my life. If the verdict is sustained, henceforth any man can be arrested and dragged to prison, tried, convicted, and punished for any un-lawful act committed by persons known or Neebe believed all the time that the su persedeas would be granted, and never felt alarmed over its being refused.

DEADLY FIRE-DAMP.

Terrific and Fatal Explosion in a Coal Mine at Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania.

Twelve to Fifteen Men Mortally Injured, and Thirty Others More or Less Hurt.

[Wilkssbarro (Pa.) special.]

Forty-two men were seriously burned by an explosion of fire-damp Friday morning in the Convugham shaft, owned and operated by the Delaware and Hudson Company. Several other persons were slightly injured. Of the forty-two men severely burned two have since died, and ten more will probably die. Two miners, whose names are unknown, are missing, and it is believed that they were blown into a sump containing thirty feet of water and were drowned. The names of the dead are: Thomas O'Brien, aged thirty, a miner, leaves a wife and large family; Cornelius Boyle, aged thirty-eight, miner, leaves a wife and family. The names of those believed to be fataliy burned are: Hugh Sweeney, aged 27, laborer; Edward Kerns, aged 29, laborer; Richard Coulter, aged 28, has a wife and family; Condy Sannon, aged 31, miner, has a wife and large family; John Cannen, aged 40, miner, has a wife and family; Christopher Brundage, aged 35, laborer; Michael O'Brien, aged 30, laborer; Daniel Ferry, aged 32, miner, has a wife and large family; John Dougherty, aged 31, taborer; Dennis Mc-Cabe, aged 40, miner. The shaft was known to contain gas. No work was done Thursday, and consequently there was more gas than usual in it. The accident occurred at 7:10 a. m., while fifty miners and laborers were sitting at the foot of the shaft, waiting for the inside boss. The accident was due to the carelessness of Cornelius Boyle, who has paid the penalty with his life. Boyle entered a worked out chamber with a naked light on his hat, and the explosion followed. Many mules were killed and wounded, and great damage was done to the inside workings of

The scene at the colliery while the injured men were being taken from the shart was terrible. A crowd of several hundred persons had gathered at the mouth of the shaft, among them the wives, mothers, and daughters of the injured men. As the victims were taken out of the pit they were brought to the engine-house, and the women made desperate efforts to gain entrance. The frantic demonstrations of grief were heart-rending, but they were sternly kept outside the building, while the blackened, scorehed, and bleeding victims of the disaster were wrapped in blankets soaked in oil. The engine-house floor was covered with writhing human forms so disfigured by fire as to be unrecegnizable. As fast as possible they were taken to the hospital or to their homes.

A DISASTROUS SEASON.

Many Vessels Destroyed and Lives Lost on the Lakes.

[Chicago telegram.] The recent storms have practically put a stop to navigation for the season of 1886. As fast as the lumber fleet arrives the vessels are being stripped and sent into winter quarters in the various slips. The season has been a good one as far as freights were concerned, but the underwriters have suffered heavily and the loss of human life has been great. So far this season thirty-three vessels have been driven on shore or foundered, with more or less loss. The schooners L. J. Conway, Belle Walbridge, South Haven, Pathfinder, Lucerne, Florida, Helen, Menekaunee, Marinette, Dickenson, and Emerald and the fine propeller Robert Wallace are total losses, and represent a money value of nearly $500,000 in vessel property. What the value of the cargoes was cannot be accurately computed, but will probably double that amount. The schooner Lucerne, which foundered in Lake Superior with a load of iron ore, took with her the entire crew of ten men. Not a single body was recovered. Eight lives were lost on the Marinette and seven on the Menekannee, only one man of the two crews escaping. The scow Helen went to pieces off Muskegon, and her entire crew of seven men were drowned. The schooner Florida, with a cargo of coal, went to pieces off Marquette. The crew were saved, with the exception of the mate, who was caught between the rescuing-tug and the vessel and squeezed to death. The Dickenson and Emerald broke adrift from the tug Justice Field and went into the breakers. Eight men out of their crews of sixteen were lost, making a total of fortyone sailors who have lost their lives by the Thousands of Cases Discovered by the Expert Veterinarians. [Chicago dispatch.]

The work of appraising cattle at the Phoenix Distillery was completed yesterday. Two hundred and twenty-nine animals were appraised at an average valuation of $26. The commission will visit Schufeldt's establishment to-day, and begin upon the 900 head confined there. It now seems probable that all of next week will be required to finish the work at the distilleries, and that no slaughtering will be done for some time yet.

It is becoming daily more apparent that the disease is much more widespread than was at first supposed. The expert veterinarians who are at work among the milchcows stabled throughout the city are constantly discovering cases in the most unleoked-for places, and between 2,000 and 3,000 suspected cases are known to exist in this county. A prominent member of the commission said last night that, in his opinion, the disease was now so firmly rooted here that it could not be eradicated.

"The State has refused to pay for diseased animals," said he, "and as a consequence poor people who happen to possess one or two cows will conceal the fact of the existence of the disease from the authorities until whole herds become affected. If the State would agree to pay for the diseased cattle, as it should do, and take hold of the matter in earnest, we might yet stamp out the disease. But as matters now look our State is doomed to see its cattle interests ruined."

A Lesson in Manners.

Hon, Leopold Morse, in a Liverpool hotel, was advised in an offensive tone by an Englishman, of whom he asked a questien, to address such inquiries in future to the porter. "I thought you were the porter," returned Mr. Morse, "and furthermore," added our ex-Congressman, "since you say my addressing you was a rudeness, let me give you a lesson in manners. In America a gentleman thinks it only decent to answer, if he can, a decent question. However little we have to do, let us The rudeness was yours, sir, whoever to that little well.
